

Health Education England working across the East Midlands

DID YOU KNOW... that East Midlands offers every trainee 20 months in General Practice? With the rest of your programme made up of 4 different specialities you'll receive a comprehensive and wide ranging educational package, but this is only one of the many reasons why you should consider moving here.

HEE East Midlands is a fantastic place to train, work, and live. A much under-appreciated area of the UK, East Midlands has everything from vibrant multicultural cities to rolling English countryside. In our smaller towns you can combine working in ground breaking integrated forward looking primary care services with high training standards, while developing your understanding of the role of the GP as an important member of the local community. Excellent family friendly facilities, including top class schools, reasonable house prices and good transport links make this the ideal place to train and develop in your primary care career.

There are excellent sporting and leisure facilities including Leicester City Football, Premiership Rugby at Northampton and Leicester, National Watersports Centre in Nottingham and the National Space Centre in Leicester. In addition, there are walking and climbing opportunities in the Peak District, or chances for a more leisurely stroll along a beach in Lincolnshire.

We offer the opportunity to undertake academic GP training, including both teaching and research opportunities. We also offer innovative placements in ST2, giving you the opportunity to start developing expertise in leadership, innovation or a specific clinical area. We also currently offer the opportunity to do a Fellowship at the end of training, again giving you an opportunity to kick-start your life in primary care in the East Midlands!

For more information please contact Nigel Scarborough, Head of School of Primary Care nigel.scarborough@hee.nhs.uk or Caroline Ahrens, Acting Head of School (Leicestershire, Northamptonshire and Rutland) and Primary Care Recruitment Lead caroline.ahrens@hee.nhs.uk